Matt Crawford Called To His Door Tuesday Night And Shot Seven Times By Unknown Assassins

(Special to The News.)

JACKSON, Ky., Oct. 19.—Matt Crawford, a prominent young man living on the river about two miles above this city was called to his door at 2 o'clock Wednesday morning by an unknown party or parties and shot seven times, being killed instantly.

Mr. Crawford was about 30 years of age and was engaged in distilling business. He is the son of Mr. Steve Crawford, of Athol, and a nephew of the late Judge Hargis.

No reason is known for the killing. Crawford had no known enemies. He was popular and wealthy and had never been engaged in any of the feuds of the county. The news reached here early in the morning and Captain T. G. Millikin of Lexington, was telegraphed to bring his bloodhounds and every effort will be made to capture the guilty party or parties.

The bloodhounds of Captain Millikin, of Lexington passed through this city at 8 o'clock L. and E. train Wednesday morning on their way to Jackson. A telegraph message was received by Mr. Millikin Tuesday morning stating that Matt Crawford, a prominent young man of Jackson, had been called to the door by an unknown party or parties and instantly killed Wednesday morning.

Mr. Sam Jett of this city on hearing of this killing immediately telegraphed to the Breathitt News to sell all his holdings in Breathitt county. Mr. Jett stated that he did not propose to do business where life was so uncertain as in Breathitt. Mr. Jett has a general store at Oakdale, a distillery, a goat ranch and is interested in other enterprises.

Wife of Mr. John McCord Expired Monday Night From Attack of Acute Indigestion.

Mrs. John McCord died suddenly Tuesday night of acute indigestion. Mrs. McCord had been complaining for the past few weeks but her condition was not thought to be serious. Tuesday night she was sitting on the front porch of her residence on Hickman street when she was taken suddenly ill.

TOBACCO PRICES STILL LOWER

Offerings on the Lexington Market in Comparison With Last Week Are Off $1 a Hundred.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 19.—Reactions from former sales constituting the offering at Tuesday's auction 1900 pooled tobacco by the Burroughs Tobacco Society. The hogheads were sold singly by number. The largest buyers of the day were Spillman & Ellis, who secured 62. The highest price was $16.25 and the lowest $7.50. The average for 177 hogheads sold was $11.65 a hundred. The sale will be resumed Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, when straight grades will be offered. Compared with last week the market was off about one dollar a hundred. There were no rejections Tuesday.

The following comparison with last week's prices shows the slump.

	Tuesday	Friday
B-4	$11.10	$12.54
C-4	12.10	12.80
C-5	11.20	12.25
C-3	15	15.65
D-2	15.75	16.50

The quality was superior to that of last week, all offerings having been reggraded.

The bulk of that sold was of the color grades, and the demand is ordinarily active.

After the factory is well started Mr. Tomlinson will give very little of his time to the management as he has other interests that will consume most of his time.

REPUBLICANS MUCH WORRIED

Over Situation in New York and Are Afraid State is Lost to the Democrats.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—President Taft devoted several hours Tuesday afternoon to political conferences regarding the situation in New York State. He saw Republican State Chairman Prentiss Otto T. Barnard and Ralph Peters.

The Republican leaders made no attempt to disguise the fact that they are considerably worried over the outlook. They say the situation is perhaps the most puzzling they ever have had to face. One put it to the President this way:

"We couldn't win without the Colonel, and it looks that if we are defeated it will be because of the attacks on the Colonel."

Campaign funds, the ex-President was told, are coming in more slowly than for many years. The President is not inclined to take a pessimistic view of the situation, however.

He said again that he did not feel that the present campaign in New York would have a dominant effect upon the Presidential campaign in 1912. It is understood that Barnard believes President Taft will be re-nominated in 1912.

COLONEL NOT TO MEET TAFT.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Oct. 19.—It was said for Colonel Roosevelt at Sagamore Hill that he will not go to New York Wednesday nor will President Taft come to Oyster Bay.

This apparently disposes of the rumor current in New York that there was to be a meeting.

WALKER SCORES ROOSEVELT.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 19.—Without mentioning the name of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, but making it obvious that it was he of whom he was speaking, John Brisben Walker, former editor of the Cosmopolitan Magazine, in an address Tuesday night before the Knife and Fork Club made a sharp attack on the former President.

Mr. Walker represented Colonel Roosevelt as "a supreme demagogue; the quintessence of fake; one equipped with an unblushing effrontery capable of putting into the Ananias Club every man or woman, who could analyze his attempted deception; a practical politician, who has learned the art of being all things to all men, who can be an enthusiastic progressive in Kansas and Iowa and write an endorsement of the Aldrich tariff in a New York platform."

PHILLIES WIN SECOND GAME

LANGLEY UNABLE TO AROUSE ENTHUSIASM

Republican Candidate For Congress in This District Speaks to Small Crowd at Beattyville.

BEATTYVILLE, Ky., Oct. 19.—Hon. John W. Langley spoke here Tuesday to a small sized crowd not exceeding 100. The lack of old-time enthusiasm shown must have been painful to him, as he did not receive a single ripple of applause during the course of his remarks. He made a vain appeal for the Democratic vote, telling the Democrats he had worked alike for them and own party and had sent one as many garden seeds as the other. He seemed to think he had the Republican vote solid behind him, but there probably has never been so much disaffection in the party as now.

AUDITORIUM.

The best bill offered by the Auditorium theatre for some time is on the program for Wednesday night and Thursday night. John A. She two pictures to be used are new and of splendid subjects.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Mayor Gaynor of this city, will be the guest of President Taft at the White House on Saturday and Sunday next.

A man would rather win a dollar on a wheel than earn five at honest labor.

WELLMAN FAILS IN GREAT TRIP

"America" is Abandoned and Crew is Rescued By the Steamship "Trent."

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—A wireless message to the New York Times from Capt. Dowd of the Royal mail steamer Trent says the Trent picked up Walter Wellman and the crew of the America airship Tuesday. The airship had been abandoned. The rescue was made in latitude 35.43, longitude 68.18.

The position reported by Captain Dowd indicates that Wellman and his crew were picked up at a point about 150 miles due east of Cape Hatteras on the North Carolina coast. The wireless message was received by Sandison & Son, local agents of the Royal Mail Steamship Packet line, playing between New York, Cuba, and Bermuda, and signed by Commander Dowd of the steamer Trent and read as follows:

"At 5 a. m. today we sighted Wellman's airship 'America' in distress. She signaled that she required assistance and help. After three hours maneuvering, fresh winds blowing, we got Wellman with the entire crew and cat. They were hauled safely aboard. All are well. The 'America' was abandoned in latitude 35.43 north, longitude 68.15 west.

GREAT FURY OF WIND AND WAVE

Let Loose Upon Cities of Florida Peninsula and Crops Are Believed to Be Totally Destroyed.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 19.—Torn asunder by one of the most destructive storms that ever charged up from the tropics, 50,000 miles of territory in the Florida peninsula is without means of communication with the outside world.

Cyclonic winds have playfully swept through the towns and cities at 90 miles an hour, demolishing houses and scattering devastation broadcast.

Joining in the demonstration of the elements, the sea, lashed to a fury, has swept over man's attempts to harness the waves, the sea walls, and demolished seaside resorts, railroad tracks, water fronts and wharves whereon was stored cotton and other freight.

Along the western coast many lives are believed to have been lost, and the property damage reaches into the millions.

The last reports from this section, embracing all that territory south of a line from Tampa to St. Augustine, told of hurricane winds, hourly increasing in intensity, and rapidly falling barometers. The orange crop in that territory and the vast truck farming industry probably has been ruined.

Mayport, at the mouth of the St. Johns River, experienced a wind of 80 to 90 miles an hour, and one half of the houses there were wrecked. There has been no communication with any point of Jacksonville, except St. Augustine, since late Tuesday afternoon, and all wires north were severed, with one exception, shortly before dark.

A heavy downpour of rain accompanied the high winds everywhere. At St. Augustine houses were flooded at low tide, with promise of immense damage to business property when high tide came in. The city is in darkness.

MAYOR'S ASSAILANT HAS SENILE DEMENTIA

Attorney For Gallagher Has Had Him Examined By Several Physicians.

NEW YORK, October 19.—Alexander Simpson, attorney for James J. Gallagher, who attempted to assassinate Mayor Gaynor last August, asserts that his client is now, and has been for some time, suffering from senile dementia.

Dr. John Reilly, of this city, and Dr. Britton D. Evans, Superintendent of the Morris Plains (N. J.) Insane asylum, alienists who made a careful examination of Gallagher, reported to Mr. Simpson that in their opinion the prisoner, who is in the jail at Jersey City awaiting trial, has long been suffering from this form of dementia.

While Mr. Simpson has not revealed the plan of his defense of Gallagher, it is believed that he will base his defense on the finding of the alienists.

FALLING OFF IN RURAL DISTRICT

Census Officials Predict Smaller County Population in Many Western States.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—The census for the State of Illinois, announcement of which is expected within two or three weeks, will show a decrease in the rural population, according to the prediction of the census officials, who likewise anticipate a falling off in the rural population of Indiana, Ohio and Kentucky and possibly other Middle Western States.

The Michigan census, which was given out in advance of other States on account of the election laws that were to be affected, showed a marked falling off in many of the counties. More recently the decrease shown in Missouri excited much comment.

Reasons given for the decrease in the rural sections of Illinois, the showing of which is in prospect, are: Improvements in farm machinery, wealth of the farmers, who do not care to divide their holdings into small farms and who are sending their boys to the West to take up new land, and the natural "city drift."

The State of Massachusetts has a population of 3,366,416. This is an increase of 561,070, or 20 per cent, over the population of 1900, when the total was 2,805,346. The increase from 1890 to 1900 was 566,403, or 25 per cent. Indiana is pressing the Bay State for seventh place.

THE CHINESE PARLIAMENT.

The recent opening of the Chinese National Assembly must be regarded as on the whole the most significant step thus far taken in the elaborate processes of constitutional development in that empire. At the time the body was commonly spoken of as a senate, but that was incorrect and misleading. It is no more a senate than it is a house of representatives. It is neither of these, and yet in a measure it partakes of the nature of each of them, and it contains confessedly and purposely the germs and foundations of both. It is described by the government as the foundation of a parliament and is officially named the National Assembly. It was ordered into existence by an edict of September 20, 1907, which set forth that in a constitutional government a bicameral parliament was the real foundation of executive power, that China was not yet ready for such a body, but that there should be established a preliminary "court to assist the government" known as the National Assembly.

This body, which is now in active existence, consists partly of noblemen and class representatives, who will in time form the nucleus of a senate, and partly of representatives of the provincial assemblies, who will form the basis of a house of representatives. There are exactly one hundred of each of these two classes, though the former class is subdivided into seven sections, of which only four, with forty-eight members, belong to the hereditary nobility, the fifty-two members of the other three sections being commoners chosen for merit. The first hundred are appointed by the Emperor and the second by the provincial governors, so that there is practically no popular representation, which will, of course, come later, when this assembly gives way to the real parliament of two houses for which it is a preparation. The present body is authorized to discuss and to adopt resolutions concerning the national revenue and expenditure, taxation, public debts, new legal codes and various other topics, but none of its actions can be effective without the imperial assent, and it is really intended to be a training school for future parliaments rather than a true legislative body.

What is most significant, however, is the fact that the formation and conduct of this body, and also the popular desire for a real parliament have so strongly and favorably impressed the Regent that he has decided to shorten the period at first allotted to probation for constitutional government and to establish a fully developed and competent parliament within three years. This is, we believe, the first change which has been made in the time table of constitutional development as originally published; and it is notably encouraging that it is not only a change for expedition but also is made not capriciously nor in compliance with mere clamor, but upon the reassuring basis of actual achievements and of demonstrated fitness for more rapid progress.

SUCCESS FORECASTS.

Success Magazine favors The News with advanced copies of its preliminary forecast of the Congressional election of 1910. The forecast is usually strikingly accurate. It has 25,000 or 30,000 life members scattered all over the United States and asks them for their opinion from which it makes up its forecast. In the last presidential election it forecast successfully the electoral vote of every State. Its opinion is therefore entitled to great weight. It gives the Democrats 168 districts sure, the Republicans 160, with a total probably a tie, with thirteen doubtful districts. In Kentucky it places both the Ninth and Tenth districts close, with probability of Democrats being elected in both. The magazine's conclusions are that the next House of Representatives will be almost exactly in even balance. The probabilities are slightly in favor of a Republican majority of two or three, but it is impossible to predict with certainty at this writing, which of the two parties will organize the House.

It will make another guess on the list, when it is hoped that it will come nearer hitting the mark. Nearly all other sources of information give the Democrats a majority, some a very decided one.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—WHEAT—Improved wheat crop prospects in both Russia and the Argentine yesterday as a result of rains added to the heaviness in the situation and caused the trade to disregard smaller world's shipments and higher Liverpool cables. As May approached one dollar late in the day there was extensive covering by some big houses. Profit taking on short lines is an easy matter, and the more of it there is done the weaker the technical position of the market becomes. Advertisements indicate that the wheat trade in this country is still considerably out of line for natural export sales and everything indicates that a level where foreigners will buy our wheat is what the trade must reach before the bear market is checked.

CORN—Unsettled weather is not likely to be of a character to interfere with the marketing of old corn and the proper drying of the new crop. Together and there is an over abundance of corn, and this will mean old-fashioned prices before the decline is over. The natural tendency is for the oats trade to follow the weakness in corn.

PROVISIONS—Gelt says 14,000 hogs against 13,000 estimated and 15,000 last year. The trade is still mixed on the hog movement and the possible action of feeders for the next two and a half months, during which time January product can be made.

ARSENIC POISONING.

The Torture That Ensues Before Death Brings Relief.

When a single dose of arsenic in sufficient quantity to be felt has been taken colicky pains, bowel disorder and perhaps nausea result. In the course of an hour after a poisonous dose has been taken an intense burning pain is felt in the esophagus and stomach. This spreads to the entire anterior portion of the lower part of the trunk. A sense of constriction at the throat and an acrid, metallic taste accompany the pain. Then vomiting and relaxation of the bowels begin. As the case progresses the symptoms increase in intensity. Then comes a thirst that water will not allay, although it apparently increases the stomach disturbance. The victim groans and writhes.

Now he implores the doctor to save him. Then he begs to be killed and put out of pain. The extremities become icy. The pulse is small, feeble and frequent, and the breathing is labored, embarrassed and painful because of abdominal tenderness. The surface of the body becomes dark and of that bluish color that medical men call cyanosed. Violent cramps add their torture, exhaustion becomes collapse, convulsions or coma ensues, and death ends the agony. The torture lasts sometimes from five to twenty hours. In some cases these symptoms occur, but in a modified form, and the doctor will apparently get the better of the disease. The remission will be but for a day or two. Then the abdomen will swell, and icy coldness will pervade the frame. Shivering will become pronounced trembling, then cramps, convulsions and death.

A BIT OF DIPLOMACY

An English Official Who Outwitted a French Admiral.

HOW PERIM ISLAND WAS WON

The Interesting Story That Is Told by a White House on the Foreshore of the Arabian Coast at the Southern Entrance to the Red Sea.

On the foreshore of the Arabian coast in the strait of Bab-el-Mandeb, at the southern entrance to the Red sea, stands a large white house concerning which the travelers to the far east may hear a curious story. In the middle of the nineteenth century, when M. de Lesseps after many difficulties had successfully floated the Suez Canal company, the governor of the British port of Aden, about 100 miles distant, was surprised one morning by the visit of a French squadron of very unusual size for that part of the orient, which, having encountered a terrific storm off Sokatra, had put in for repairs.

In the mind of the governor curiosity was at once aroused as to the destination of so large a command, a curiosity which increased as he found it impossible to extract any further information from the French admiral or his officers beyond the statement that they were upon an ordinary cruise, an explanation which the former was not the least inclined to believe.

Firm in the belief, therefore, that some political move of great importance was afoot, if not afoot, the governor, in order first of all to gain time, gave orders to go very tortoise-like on the repairs and then set to work to take the Frenchmen off their guard by giving a succession of such entertainments as both his slender means and the awful barrenness of the place would afford.

But, though at the end of two weeks the French and British officers had got upon the best of terms, the immediate destination of the French squadron remained as much of a mystery to the governor of Aden as before, and in spite of all possible delay the repairs were nearly completed.

Now, it happened that the wife of the governor possessed an Irish maid, who had been receiving attentions from one of the French petty officers—attentions which the girl did not regard seriously. It occurred to the governor that by such means something might be learned of his unexpected visitor's plans, and a private conversation between the governor's wife and her maid resulted in another between the latter and her French admirer, by which it was discovered that Perim Island was the objective point.

At this information the governor opened his eyes wide indeed, for, if the Suez canal were cut through, Perim, as commanding the southern entrance to the Red sea, in the middle of the strait of Bab-el-Mandeb, would be a place of great strategic importance, over which, without doubt, it was the intention of the French admiral to hoist the tricolor.

Secretly giving orders, therefore, for a gunboat to immediately embark a detachment of soldiers and steal away in the night for Perim Island, the governor then announced a farewell banquet and ball for the day but one following, a final act of courtesy with which the French admiral would willingly have dispensed, for he was anxious to sail, but which he could not well refuse on account of the use he had made of the British supplies and machinery at Aden.

So the dinner and party in due course came off, the governor being in high spirits, because in the meantime he had received the news of the occupation of Perim, which under the circumstances would surely be followed by the longest for promotion, and the French admiral was equally happy, for he hoped on the morrow to add the same important little speck of land to the dominion of his own country, thereby covering his breast with the stars and himself with maritime glory.

Next day, after an interchange of cordial farewells, the French squadron sailed away to an apparently unknown destination, until, when, clear of the land, the course was laid full speed direct for Perim Island.

Then what were the dismay and disappointment of the French admiral and his officers when, on coming in sight of their destination, they beheld the British flag flying and a company of soldiers drawn up to give them a proper salute. It is said the French admiral was so mortified at being thus outwitted that he first thing his cocked hat overboard and then followed it himself into the sea.

Be this as it may, as Perim was clearly already occupied by the British, the only counter move which the French could make was to take possession of a strip of the foreshore on the opposite Arabian coast, where they built the fortified white house in question, but as the place was entirely at the mercy of the guns on Perim Island it was shortly abandoned, to remain to this day as a monument of a French admiral's undoing.—Exchange.

In Honor of Minerva.
The most notable festival at Athens was in honor of Minerva. All classes of citizens on this particular day marched in procession. The oldest went first, then the young men, then the children, the young women, the matrons and the people of the lower orders. The most prominent object in the parade was a ship propelled by hidden machinery and bearing at its masthead the sacred banner of the goddess.

OLD TIME PUNISHMENT.

Agony of a Day in the Stocks For a Fit of Bad Temper.

A record on file in the library of congress contains an account of the adventures of a certain Hubbard, who was sentenced in Boston to the stocks for having indulged in an unwarrantable fit of ill temper, says Harper's Weekly. When he had taken his seat for the day there came along a drove of swine, which seemed to cast upon him those leering looks that only a fat pig can bestow. A dog followed, sniffing at the prisoner's feet and making feints—unpleasantly approaching reality—of biting him. Then a cock, mounting to the very top of the stocks, crowed his derision upon the victim below, and presently a rough fellow, after indulging in ugly taunts, threw at him felled toadstools and a dead snake.

Then an Indian appeared, who in a drunken rage, stimulated by some fancied injury, rushed at Hubbard with a tomahawk, probably intending nothing worse, however, than to give him a severe fright, which he certainly succeeded in doing.

Help came from an unexpected quarter, for at that moment an old bull came tearing down the road. His attention was attracted by the stocks, and with a roar he prepared for a charge.

Alarmed in his turn, the savage dashed off. The bull made a dash at the stocks and carried away the corner post, but without even grazing the object of his apparent wrath. Whether he was disgusted by the little he had accomplished or his animosity was thus satisfied, he started off, bellowing and shaking his head, much to the relief of the said Hubbard.

And then the unfortunate man was left in comparative peace to his own meditations and the cutting sleet of a November day.

A COURSE OF DINNERS.

It Includes Roasted Peas as a Substitute For Coffee.

In a little book called "The Economical Housekeeper," published about the year 1840, there is given on one page "A Course of Dinners For a Week." At the time of its publication the little book was most popular, as is proved by the author's preface to the second revised edition. She says:

"Encouraged by the very favorable reception that our humble labors have met in the rapid sale of the first edition of 1,500 copies in about fifteen weeks, and the demand still continuing, we have improved the time by endeavoring to make the present edition more worthy of patronage, if possible, than the first."

Therefore it is probable that the "course of dinners" which follows was considered admirable at that time:

"Monday—Tea, coffee or cocoa, with mince, bread and butter in winter, bread and milk in summer.

"Tuesday—Boiled dish, with apple dumplings.

"Wednesday—Roasted or baked meat, with bread pudding.

"Thursday—Broiled steak or fresh fish, with baked rice pudding.

"Friday—Baked beans, with baked Indian pudding.

"Saturday—Salt codfish boiled, with apple pie.

"Sunday—Morning, hashed fish and coffee; noon, bread and butter, cheese, doughnuts."

It is a suggestive paragraph which appears on the same page:

"Peas, roasted and ground, are an excellent substitute for coffee, and you would hardly know which is best." Youth's Companion.

Value of the Kangaroo's Tail.

So important is the kangaroo's tail in his rapid progress that experienced hunters with guns are accustomed to fire at the point where this appendage joins the body, when the tail being disabled for its office of balancing, the animal is as effectually stopped as if hamstringed. It is elsewhere, except with a rifle bullet or at point blank range, the kangaroo is pretty likely to get off. One peculiarity of the kangaroo is that, after being started up, he very rarely swerves from his course, through which peculiarity he is easily "potted" by hunters, who conceal themselves while a man on horseback drives the herd toward them.

Insect Wonders.

Nothing can exceed the perfection of the minutest parts of the insect organization in general. The finest strand in a spider's web, which can scarcely be seen, is said to be composed of no less than 4,000 threads. On a single wing of a butterfly have been found 100,000 scales and on that of a silkworm moth 400,000, each of these minute scales being a marvel of beauty and completeness in itself. So thin are the wings of many insects that 50,000 placed over each other would only be a quarter of an inch thick, and yet, thin as they are, each is double.

"Pa," said Tommy, "my Sunday school teacher says if I'm good I'll go to heaven."

"Well, what about it?" said his pa.

"Well, you said if I was good I'd go to the circus. Now, I want to know who's fibbing, you or her."—Lippincott's.

AN IMPOSTOR'S TRICK.

The Cheerful Liar That Made a Fool of the Grand Monarch.

Louis XIV. was taken in once in a most humiliating way and by an impostor whose only art was lying. In 1667, just after he had returned from one of his most dazzling military successes against the Dutch, Louis le Grand received word that an embassy from Persia had just landed at Marseilles en route to the French court to bring salutations and presents from the shah. Pleased that his fame should actually have run around the world, he sent word that all the towns on the way from Marseilles to Paris should fete the ambassador.

As a result the journey to Paris was a march of triumph. Children sang and flowers were strewn along the way. Arrived at Paris, several regiments of the Swiss guard met the shah's representative and escorted him to a magnificent suit in the old palace of the Tuileries. Louis sent no less a person than the Duc de Richelieu to welcome the potentate and invite him out to Versailles to a special reception in the hall of mirrors.

The ambassador presented himself as Riza Bey of the Persian court and after showing his credentials advanced to kiss the hand of Louis le Grand and give him the shah's congratulations on his recent victories. A caravan of presents from his imperial sovereign were on their way and would arrive in Paris in a few days, said the ambassador.

Festivals followed at Versailles. The bey received magnificent presents from Louis and royal entertainment. He lounged gracefully on divans at the French court and smoked in Persian fashion. He gave the grand monarch a few fragments of opal and turquoise, saying that they came from a Persian district bordering on the Caspian sea. The woods there were full of them, he explained, and he offered to divide with France—had planted the French flag there already, as it were!

At last the day came for the formal presentation of the shah's gifts, and on that morning early Riza Bey melted into space. He was never seen or heard of again. He had, as some one said, "gone glimmering through the dream of things that were." The gems that he had left were worth, if anything, about 15 cents apiece, being glass.—New York Tribune.

THE JURY DISAGREED.

A Fine Point in Equity That Never Was Decided.

An old time story of the fine points of law and equity which arose in carrying out an amicable contract is told in the Philadelphia Record. There were four brothers who had inherited a storage warehouse from their father. He had divided the property equally among them.

Among the appurtenances was a cat—a fine animal, excellent for mousing. This, too, was divided, the eldest brother owning the right front quarter, the second brother the left front quarter and the younger brothers the two hind quarters.

Now, unfortunately, the cat in one of its nocturnal prowls injured the right front paw, and the eldest brother attended to that portion of his property by binding the injured member with a greased rag.

The cat, thankful for this relief to its sufferings, went to sleep contentedly before the fire, but in the midst of its slumbers a falling coal ignited the rag, and the animal, howling with agony dashed through the warehouse and, coming in contact with some combustibles, set the building on fire.

When the loss came to be figured out the three younger brothers wished to throw it all upon the eldest on the ground that had he not tied up his part of the cat with the inflammable rag the building would not have been destroyed.

He, on the contrary, contended that had the cat only been possessed of the front right paw—his property—it would have stood still and burned to death. It was the three other paws that caused the damage.

The brothers argued the case until they died, but they never reached an agreement.

What Should She Say?

"I tell you, little wife, you can't imagine how lonesome I am when I am separated from you. You are the best little woman in the world, so different from Drigg's nagging and scolding wife. You know that a man must get ahead in the world and be free to give his business his full attention. My little girl isn't of the suspicious, doubting kind, is she? Why, dearest, this very night I ought to go down to the club. Brown of Brown, Kalibo & Co. is in town. They're among our best customers. Ought to know him socially, hadn't I? But unless you insist, my little sweetheart wife, I won't go. It may mean a loss to the firm, but I'll stay with my precious."

Well, now, what can a woman do?—Chicago Journal.

Unpleasant to Have Around.

"Are you still engaged to Mr. Briggs?"

"No. I broke it off last week. I was afraid to marry him. He knows too much. I gave him some ribbon to match. He found it in the first store he went to, and he bought it for 2 cents below the regular price."

The Barrier.

Robbs—No; I shall never marry Slobs—But you don't seem like a woman hater. In fact, you seem very fond of the fair sex. Robbs—Yes, and I talk in my sleep.—Exchange

RIGHT HAND RULE.

The Way It Is Applied in Driving and in Navigation.

London's drivers, sitting on the right side of the driver's seat, turn to the left. Why? In order that looking down at the right side of the vehicle they may gauge to a fraction of an inch the hubs of a vehicle meeting them. In the United States the driver sits on the left side of the seat and in turning to the right of the roadway has the least knowledge of where his hubs may be in passing.

But in international navigation the right hand rules always obtain. It is the narrow channel winding into a port where the vessel keeping to starboard, no matter how many crooks and turns and loops the channel may make.

This was illustrated in a collision on the Whangpoo river, in China, when the Pekin and the Normandie collided. The Normandie was descending the stream, keeping to starboard. The Pekin was ascending the channel, keeping to its starboard. At a sharp turn in the channel the two boats collided. The Pekin's master declared that owing to the sharp bend in the river it was a "crossing" case, in which the Normandie was to blame.

In the house of lords, however, it was held that the right of any channel of any degree of sinuosity lay at the right of the channel's center; that, therefore, when the Pekin failed to observe the rule in the sharp bend and "cut across" it became an offender against the law and must pay damages.—Chicago Tribune.

EYE OF THE CAMERA.

The Picture It Brought From Out a Dark Cavern.

Dr. Francis Clark told an interesting story of a youth living in Maine who was out in the woods one day taking photographs of attractive bits of scenery. He came upon the mouth of a little cavern between the rocks, and he said to himself, "I will see what sort of picture I can get out of that cave," and as it was a dark day he decided to take a "time exposure" instead of a "snapshot." Steadying the camera upon his knee as well as he could at the edge of the cave, he gave the sensitive plate a long, deliberate look at the semidarkness within. Then he continued his tramp through the woods and after a few hours returned to his camp.

Several weeks afterward, when developing his plates, you can imagine his astonishment to see in the picture, in the very center of the cavern, with arched back and bristling fur and within springing distance of the spot where he had balanced his camera, a huge Canada lynx that might easily have destroyed his life. And yet he came and went and saw no signs of danger.—Christian Herald.
